HOWARD WHERE ARE YOU NOW???

In the past Ayers Realtors newsletters (in the Realtors Viewpoint column) there has infrequently been a potpourri of real state news and information. It's time for another dose. Newspapers, magazines, television news and real estate blogs provide a wealth of possibilities. Sometimes there is a tie to our local market.

An article about people buying a "second" home when the buyers haven't bought their "first" yet was in the Chicago Tribune recently. This may be a newly increasing phenomenon, but it reminded me of an old story and an old friend, Howard Rush. Howard came to the area from Philadelphia to take a job as a school psychologist with Gary Community Schools in the late 1970's. He was "advised" not to find housing in Gary (I could go on and on about that kind of "advice") and he ended up renting in Crown Point. Soon, after meeting other young professionals and hanging out in Miller Beach, Howard found an apartment over a garage on Lake Shore Drive. He had great landlords (some readers will remember Morrie and Neva), access to an in-ground pool and the beach.

Howard took note of his friends buying homes and building equity. He decided to buy a "second" home to his wonderful rental situation, which he considered his "first home" but he didn't want to move. Howard met and married a "Miller girl" who died tragically at a young age. Needing a new start, he found a job in his field in the Southwest, gave up his idyllic apartment, sold his "second" home to the tenants and left with his equity in pocket.

Of course, second homes were traditionally for vacation get-a-ways and different today from the newer versions of get-a-ways which now often double as AirBnB profit centers for the owners. Redfin, a national real estate firm, released a study reporting second home sales are up by 42% from pre-pandemic levels. The study attributes this to remote work situations being on the rise and people wanting less crowded environments in the age of pandemics. Locally, because we are increasingly a vacation destination, the AirBnB buyers add to that uptick.

Another study points out that seasonal towns where vacation homes are located had higher price increases over non- seasonal towns. This applies to the Miller Beach market values where second homes near the beach outsell homes without as much vacation appeal. If short term rental is the goal of the purchaser even higher prices happen.

Another interesting statistic in the potpourri of facts is the numbers of true first home buyers have been falling as a percentage of total residential sales. In 2009 first time buyers made up 45% of the market. Today they are down to 27%. Rapidly increasing prices simply made it harder for young people to get that first home. These national statistics are true in our Miller Beach market as well.

WHOLLY GUACAMOLE!

100 YEARS!

Home on the Range

There is a lot of talk these days at Ayers Realtors, at home at breakfast, in the car on the way to see a movie or on the way home after seeing a movie and it's all about the upcoming Ayers Realtors 100th Anniversary. After lengthy chats about how to celebrate a pretty remarkable accomplishment it didn't take long to figure out what really needs to be celebrated is not so much the livelihoods the business has provided over the years for Gene's Great Uncle who founded the business, or Bruce Ayers, Gene's father or Gene and the other Realtors and staff who have worked for Ayers Realtors over the years. There wouldn't even be a celebration without all the buyers and sellers who bought and sold homes and property through the company and often recommended Ayers Realty to others. The key to Ayers Realty longevity boils down to the people who live here and have made Miller Beach work and grow and be desirable to others considering living in our community....that along with a shout out to Lake Michigan, Mother Nature and her dunes, flora and fauna.

Miller Beach is today what it was when Gene and I were growing up here. It is a melting pot of interesting and diverse people always striving to make Miller Beach a better place. Thanks to the staggering amount of volunteer groups who provide hours and hours of community service to keep our community clean, inviting and cared for as well as MCC, MBBA, along with volunteers that provide us with a farmers market, an art center, teach us about water safety, maintain our fabulous, historical Aquatorium and repair the bridges on our lagoon. Then there is the Miller Garden Club that maintains more than a dozen community gardens, offers gardening advice at their meetings as well as sponsors three annual garden related events, the profits from which are plowed back into the community. These individuals and community groups and the volunteer work they lend to our community help make Miller Beach what it is today. As the 100th year of being in business in the Miller Beach section of Gary, Indiana in the same building on Lake Street built by founder, N.Guy Ayers in 1926, Ayers Realtors is proud to be here and says "Hats Off" to all who make Miller Beach the place we know and love.

Since Cinco de Mayo is just around the corner it seems only reasonable to share recipes for Bloody Marys and Salsamole. Make a batch of both, buy some chips and have a toast to a muy bueno summer in Miller Beach.

Bloody Mary Mix

Use a 64 oz container, add and mix the following ingredients, pour over ice and hang on to your sombreros.

- 1 46oz can V-8 juice
- 6 oz lemon juice
- 2 TBS Worcestershire sauce
- 2 generous dashes Tabasco sauce
- 1/2 tsp celery salt
- 6 oz vodka - more or less
- celery for garnish

Mix, pour over ice, garnish and have a Happy Cinco de Mayo!

Salsamole

- 2 large tomatoes, seeded & finely diced
 - 1 red pepper, diced
 - 1 yellow pepper, diced
 - 1 C shredded carrots
 - 1 c corn (frozen is good)
 - Salt & pepper to taste
 - 1 C finely chopped fresh cilantro
 - 1 jalapeno seeded & finely chopped
 - 3-4 TBS fresh lemon juice
 - 1 - 16 oz can black beans, drained & rinsed
 - 1 medium avocado, peeled, pitted & diced
1. Combine all the ingredients (except the avocado) in a medium bowl. Cover & refrigerate until ready to serve
 2. Spoon into a serving bowl. Just before serving gently stir in the avocado, taste for seasoning and let the celebration begin!
